I. Introduction

In this Order, the Commission adopts final rules regarding requests to change or correct the Mail Classification Schedule (MCS).

II. Background

The Commission is charged with maintaining accurate product lists. See 39 U.S.C. 3642. In Docket No. RM2007–1, the Commission promulgated rules establishing the MCS as the vehicle for presenting the product lists with necessary descriptive content.¹ Those rules are codified at 39 CFR part 3020, subparts A–F.

On November 14, 2014, the Commission issued a notice of proposed rulemaking and requested comments on proposed rules regarding requests to change or correct the MCS (specifically, replacing 39 CFR part 3020, subpart E).² Order No. 2250 described how the regulations did not satisfactorily address

MCS changes that were more significant than minor corrections to the MCS but did not rise to the level of a product list modification. The proposed rules distinguished between material changes and minor corrections to the descriptive content in the MCS and proposed procedures for the initiation and review of each type of change. The notice of proposed rulemaking was also published in the Federal Register. 79 FR 69781 (November 24, 2014).

The Postal Service and the Public Representative submitted initial comments suggesting changes to the rules proposed in Order No. 2250.³ The Postal Service also submitted reply comments.⁴ After consideration of the comments submitted, the Commission adopts the proposed rules, modified as described below.

III. Section-by-Section Analysis

In general, the Postal Service and Public Representative offered positive comments with respect to the Commission's proposed rules. See, e.g., Postal Service Comments at 1, PR Comments at 3. Both commenters also offered suggestions that they assert would improve or clarify the proposed rules. The comments primarily focused on two issues: The contents of the supporting justification for a material change to a MCS product description and the provisions concerning the Commission's review of requests to make either a material change or minor correction to the MCS. The Commission's analysis of the comments received is discussed below.

A. Section 3020.81 (Supporting Justification for Changes to Product Descriptions)

Section 3020.81 of the proposed rules lists the supporting justification that must be filed by the Postal Service when it proposes a material change to a product description in the MCS. As proposed, paragraph (c) required the Postal Service to describe the impact that the proposed material changes will have on users of the product and on competitors as part of its supporting justification for its request to make a material change to a product description.

The Postal Service comments that the requirement in proposed section 3020.81(c) is more strenuous than the requirement that currently applies to modifications of the product lists. Postal Service Comments at 2. The Postal Service suggests that section 3020.81(c) requires only that it “[p]rovide any available information that describes the likely impact of the changes on users of the product and on competitors.” Id. at 3. The Postal Service states its alternative wording would establish the same standard that currently applies to modifications of the product lists. Id.

In contrast, the Public Representative suggests that paragraph (c) be broadened to require the Postal Service to “[d]escribe the views of those who use the product on the appropriateness of the proposed action and the impact that the changes will have on users of the product and on competitors and on small business concerns.” PR Comments at 12. He asserts that the Commission’s proposed rules eliminate two considerations required by 39 U.S.C. 3642(b)(3) and the reintroduction of those considerations would protect the product lists from erosion through incremental changes to a product description, which could eventually modify the product itself, to the detriment of users. Id. at 11–12.

The Postal Service responds that the Public Representative’s suggestion appears to impose an obligation on it “to obtain certainty” regarding the impact that a material MCS product description change will have before it requests Commission review of the change. Postal Service Reply Comments at 2–3. The Postal Service hypothesizes that such a requirement would require it to “conduct market research or otherwise compile data that reflect some unspecified level of scientific or empirical analysis of the impact of an MCS product description change on customers, competitors and small businesses.” Id. at 3. The Postal Service suggests the following revision to the Public Representative’s proposal for paragraph (c): Provide available information describing the views of those who use the product on the appropriateness of the proposed action and the likely impact of the changes on users of the product and on competitors and on small business concerns. Id.

The Commission declines to adopt the particular revisions proposed by either commenter. Although the Public Representative and Postal Service offer different suggested language, both commenters attempt to establish a standard for material changes to product descriptions that is similar to the standard that applies to modifications of the product lists. See Postal Service Comments at 3; PR Comments at 11. However, the Commission’s intent in establishing the standard for material changes was to strike a middle ground between the showing that is required for modifications to the product lists and the showing for corrections to MCS product descriptions.

Nevertheless, the Commission recognizes that the paragraph, as originally proposed, could be interpreted to require a more burdensome showing by the Postal Service than that required for modifications of the product lists. Therefore, the Commission adopts the following minor revision to proposed section 3020.81(c)—the addition of the word likely—so that section 3020.81(c) will read as follows: Describe the likely impact that the changes will have on users of the product and on competitors. This change tracks the Commission’s original intent to allow the Postal Service to make a showing that is less onerous than the showing that is required for modifications to the product lists but more robust than the showing for corrections to MCS product descriptions.

B. Provisions Concerning Commission Review (3020.83 and 3020.92)

Sections 3020.83 and 3020.92 of the proposed rules describe the actions the Commission may take in response to a Postal Service request to either materially change or correct a product description, respectively. These provisions are nearly identical in the proposed rules.

The Public Representative suggests three revisions to proposed section 3020.92. First, he suggests revising section 3020.92(b) to explicitly state that a minor correction would be made if “not a material change to the product descriptions” and “consistent with the provisions of title 39, subject to editorial corrections.” PR Comments at 8. The Postal Service does not object to the Public Representative’s suggestion but comments that the second change may be “superfluous.” Postal Service Reply Comments at 2. The Public Representative’s suggested additions are already implied by the proposed language. Accordingly, the Commission declines to adopt the Public Representative’s suggestions as unnecessary.

Second, the Public Representative comments that the elimination of the statement in the current rule that the Commission will make the change “to coincide with the effective date of the proposed change” introduces “ambiguity about the Commission’s intended action time.” PR Comments at 8. The Postal Service does not comment on the Public Representative’s suggestion. The Commission agrees with the Public Representative that the proposed rule is unclear concerning when the Commission will make the change to the MCS. Therefore, the Commission adopts the Public Representative’s suggestion and adds language to state that the change to the MCS will coincide with the effective date of the proposed change to both sections 3020.83 and 3020.92.

Third and finally, the Public Representative suggests “in the interests of clarity and economy” combining sections 3020.83 and 3020.92 into a section numbered 3020.100 and named “Commission Review and Action.” Id. at 12. The Postal Service does not comment on the Public Representative’s suggestion. The format of the proposed rules was designed to have separate sections for material changes (39 CFR 3020.80 et seq.) and minor corrections (39 CFR 3020.90 et seq.). Accordingly, the Commission declines to adopt the Public Representative’s suggestion.

C. Additional Minor Corrections

In order to improve upon the clarity of the rules proposed in Order No. 2250, the Commission makes the following editorial changes and minor corrections:

- Rule 3020.81 contains an editorial change to the title of the rule.
- Rule 3020.82 contains an editorial change to the title of the rule.
- Rule 3020.83 contains an editorial change to the title of the rule.
- Rule 3020.83(e) contains a minor correction.
- Rule 3020.91 contains an editorial change to the title of the rule.
- Rule 3020.92 contains an editorial change to the title of the rule.
- Rule 3020.92(e) contains a minor correction.
