commenter stated that the OCC should provide a safety and soundness justification for collecting very granular information, while asserting that loan-level data contains the sensitive personal information of borrowers. The commenter believed that loan-level data is less secure and that the OCC should specify the controls that will ensure that the information is not improperly accessed or abused. In addition, the commenter requested that monthly submissions put national banks and Federal savings associations at a competitive disadvantage with state-chartered institutions, which are not subject to the same requirements. The commenter noted that bank supervisors have historically monitored credit quality via regular onsite examinations and the monitoring of trends in basic metrics such as the level of past due loans, nonaccrual loans, criticized and classified loans, and troubled debt restructurings. The commenter suggested that the OCC provide an explanation as to why these methods are no longer sufficient without the addition of the proposed collection of monthly loan-level data.

The request for copies of the data templates will be met by the Information Collection Request, which will be submitted to the Office of Management and Budget and made publicly available at www.reginfo.gov. Banks generally use monthly data for their own risk management and reporting purposes. However, consistent with the commenter’s suggestion, the OCC is exploring collecting certain first lien mortgage data on a quarterly, rather than monthly basis. Based upon OCC’s supervisory experience and knowledge of banks’ reporting capabilities, collection of loan-level data, rather than pool-level data, is generally less burdensome for banks. Additionally, the OCC is required by 12 U.S.C. 1715z–25 to report loan-level mortgage metrics data to Congress. It is not sufficient for the OCC to monitor the credit quality of first lien mortgages solely through onsite examinations, rather than collecting loan-level mortgage data. The loan-level data collected is not linked with any particular individual and is subject to an information security program to ensure its confidentiality. The OCC has worked with banks to develop a uniform set of loan-level mortgage data elements for purposes of monitoring the systemic risk of the first-lien mortgage business to the banking industry. Finally, the OCC understands the commenter’s concerns about duplication and is actively exploring using the FRB’s FR Y–14 data, where possible, in order to decrease banks’ reporting burden.

Comments continue to be invited on:
(a) Whether the collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the OCC, including whether the information shall have practical utility;
(b) The accuracy of the OCC’s estimate of the burden of the collection of information;
(c) Ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of the information to be collected;
(d) Ways to minimize the burden of the collection on respondents, including through the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology; and
(e) Estimates of capital or start-up costs and costs of operation, maintenance, and purchase of services to provide information.

12 CFR 28.3 Filing Requirements for Foreign Operations of a National Bank—Notice Required. A national bank shall notify the OCC when it files an application, notice, or report with the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (FRB) to establish or open a foreign branch, or acquire or divest of an interest in, or close, an Edge corporation, Agreement corporation, foreign bank, or other foreign organization; or opens a foreign branch, and no application or notice is required by the FRB for such transaction.

In practice, the OCC also requires an application pursuant to 12 CFR 28.3(c) from a national bank seeking to join a foreign exchange, clearinghouse, or similar type of organization. In lieu of a notice, the OCC may accept a copy of an application, notice, or report submitted to another Federal agency that covers the proposed action and contains substantially the same information required by the OCC. Under 12 CFR 28.3(c), a national bank shall furnish the OCC with any additional information the OCC may require in connection with the national bank’s foreign operations.

12 CFR 28.14(c) Limitations Based upon Capital of a Foreign Bank—Aggregation. A foreign bank that has more than one Federal branch in the same state may aggregate deposits in all of its Federal branches in that state, but exclude deposits of other branches, agencies, or wholly owned subsidiaries of the bank. The Federal branch shall compute the average amount by using the sum of deposits as of the close of business of the last 30 calendar days ending with, and including, the last day of the calendar quarter, divided by 30. The Federal branch shall maintain records of the calculation until its next examination by the OCC.

12 CFR 28.18(c)(1) Recordkeeping and Reporting—Maintenance of Accounts, Books, and Records.
