

to the public pursuant to the library provision of copyright law. See 17 U.S.C. 108.

Congress necessarily made the decision in enacting MAP–21, that copyright law does not restrict NHTSA from publicly posting copies of all manufacturer communications received by the Agency pursuant to 49 U.S.C. 30166(f) on its Web site. Indeed, 49 U.S.C. 30166(f) expressly requires the Agency to do so.

MAP–21 trumps the limited waiver of sovereign immunity for copyright infringement claims. See 28 U.S.C. 1498(b). Congress could not have intended to allow manufacturers to assert copyright infringement against the federal government based on the Agency’s publication of service bulletins and other manufacturer communications on its Web site in light of the express statutory requirement that the Agency do so. See Food & Drug Admin. v. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., 529 U.S. 120, 143 (2000) (“The classic judicial task of reconciling many laws enacted over time, and getting them to ‘make sense’ in combination, necessarily assumes that the implications of a statute may be altered by the implications of a later statute. This is particularly so where the scope of the earlier statute is broad but the subsequent statutes more specifically address the topic at hand . . . [A] specific policy embodied in a later federal statute should control our construction of the earlier statute, even though it has not been expressly amended.”) (internal quotation marks, brackets, and citations omitted).

Because the law directs the Agency to make manufacturer communications publicly available on its Web site, the Agency is acting to effectuate the law. The Agency will post on its Web site those manufacturer communications submitted to the Agency on or after the October 1, 2012 effective date of MAP–21 that are not already available on the Agency’s Web site. Going forward, the Agency intends to post to its public Web site all manufacturer communications submitted pursuant to 49 U.S.C. 30166(f), including documents submitted pursuant to 49 CFR 573.6(c)(10) or 579.5. The Agency will also post manufacturer indexes for communications submitted to the Agency on or after October 1, 2012 on a rolling basis as compliant indexes are received. The Agency intends to make manufacturer indexes available in a searchable format.

This Bulletin is not intended, nor can it be relied upon, to create any rights enforceable by any party against NHTSA, the Department of Transportation, or the United States.
