

2010 by the ED's Office of Safe and Healthy Students (OSHS) to improve school climate. Through the EDSCS, schools nationwide will have access to survey instruments and a survey platform that will allow for the collection and reporting of school climate data across stakeholders at the local level. The surveys can be used to produce school-, district-, and state-level scores on various indicators of school climate from the perspectives of students, teachers, noninstructional school staff and principals, and parents and guardians. The 2017 national EDSCS benchmark study data collection from a nationally representative sample of schools across the United States to create a national comparison point for users of EDSCS was last approved in April 2016 (OMB# 1850-0923 v.3). Data will be collected from a nationally representative sample of 500 schools serving students in grades 5–12 has to produce national school climate scores on the various topics covered by EDSCS, which will be released in the updated EDSCS platform and provide a basis for comparison between data collected by schools and school systems and the national school climate. This submission requests adjustments to the study plan to allow schools participating in the EDSCS benchmark data collection the option to survey a sample rather than all students and staff so that participating schools have greater control over the amount of burden posed on EDSCS respondents.
