AGENCY: Food and Drug Administration, HHS.

ACTION: Notice of availability.

SUMMARY: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA or Agency) is announcing the availability of the draft guidance entitled “FDA Categorization of Investigational Device Exemption (IDE) Devices to Assist the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) with Coverage Decisions.” This guidance modifies FDA’s current policy on categorization of IDE devices, which assists CMS in determining whether or not an IDE device should be covered (reimbursed) by CMS. On December 2, 2015, FDA’s Center for Devices and Radiological Health (CDRH) and CMS’s Coverage and Analysis Group (CAG) executed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to streamline and facilitate the efficient categorization of investigational medical devices in order to support CMS’s ability to make Medicare coverage (reimbursement) determinations for those investigational devices. The MOU noted the need for FDA and CMS to revise their shared understanding regarding categorization. This guidance document is intended to implement the MOU by further explaining the framework that FDA (both CDRH and the Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research) intends to follow for such decisions. This draft guidance is not final nor is it in effect at this time.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

FDA is announcing the availability of a draft guidance for sponsors, clinical investigators, industry, institutional review boards, and FDA staff, entitled "FDA Categorization of Investigational Device Exemption (IDE) Devices to Assist the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) with Coverage Decisions." When finalized, this draft guidance would modify FDA's current policy on categorization of IDE devices. In September 1995, the Health Care Financing Administration (now known as CMS) published a final rule and entered into an Interagency Agreement (IA) with FDA regarding reimbursement categorization of investigational devices. (60 FR 48417, September 19, 1995.) The rule at 42 CFR part 405, subpart B established that certain devices with an IDE approved by FDA (and certain services related to those devices) may be covered under Medicare, and set forth the process by which FDA would assist CMS in identifying such devices. FDA would assign a device with an FDA approved IDE to one of two categories: Experimental/Investigational (Category A) devices or Non-experimental/ Investigational (Category B) devices based on the level of risk the device presented to patients. The IA set forth criteria, agreed upon by CMS and FDA, which FDA would use to categorize devices. The categorization would then be used by CMS as part of its determination of whether or not devices met the requirements for Medicare coverage under section 1862(a)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1385y). CMS and FDA both recognized that experience in categorizing devices might require changes to the Interagency Agreement.

In the more than 20 years since the IA was signed, FDA has received a number of IDEs which do not easily fit into any of the eight subcategories identified in the IA. There have been several developments, such as: The publication of the guidance document entitled "Investigational Device Exemptions (IDEs) for Early Feasibility Medical Device Clinical Studies, Including Certain First in Human (FIH) Studies;" (Ref. 1) and a subsequent increase in submission of early feasibility studies to FDA, as well as modifications to CMS's regulation regarding IDEs (42 CFR part 405, subpart B), which have prompted FDA and CMS to revise their shared understanding regarding the categorization of IDE devices.

On December 2, 2015, FDA's CDRH and CMS's CAG executed an MOU to streamline and facilitate the efficient categorization of investigational medical devices. The MOU will become effective June 2, 2016. This guidance document is intended to implement the MOU and describes the criteria that FDA intends to use to help determine the appropriate category for a device to be studied. This guidance document also describes a pathway for changing the device category from Category A to Category B.

II. Significance of Guidance

This draft guidance is being issued consistent with FDA's good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The draft guidance, when finalized, will represent the current thinking of FDA on "FDA Categorization of Investigational Device Exemption (IDE) Devices to Assist the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) with Coverage Decisions." It does not establish any rights for any person and is not binding on FDA or the public. You can use an alternative approach if it satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations.

III. Electronic Access

Persons interested in obtaining a copy of the draft guidance may do so by downloading an electronic copy from the Internet. A search capability for all Center for Devices and Radiological Health guidance documents is available at <http://www.fda.gov/MedicalDevices/DeviceRegulationandGuidance/GuidanceDocuments/default.htm>.
