Addition Limitation on Suspension of Benefits Applicable to Certain Pension Plans Under the Multiemployer Pension Reform Act of 2014

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service (IRS), Treasury.

ACTION: Notice of proposed rulemaking and notice of public hearing.

SUMMARY: The Multiemployer Pension Reform Act of 2014 ("MPRA"), which was enacted by Congress as part of the Consolidated and Further Continuing Appropriations Act of 2015, relates to multiemployer defined benefit pension plans that are projected to have insufficient funds, within a specified timeframe, to pay the full plan benefits to which individuals will be entitled (referred to as plans in "critical and declining status"). Under MPRA, the sponsor of such a plan is permitted to reduce the plan benefits payable to plan participants and beneficiaries if certain conditions and limitations are satisfied (referred to in MPRA as a "suspension of benefits"). One specific limitation governs the application of a suspension of benefits under any plan that includes benefits directly attributable to a participant’s service with any employer that has withdrawn from the plan in a complete withdrawal, paid its full withdrawal liability, and, pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, assumed liability for providing benefits to participants and beneficiaries under any plan that are directly attributable to a participant’s service with any employer that has withdrawn from the plan and failed to pay (or is delinquent with respect to paying) the full amount of its withdrawal liability under section 4201(b)(1) of ERISA or an agreement with the plan. Such an employer is referred to in this preamble as a "subclause III employer," and the agreement to assume liability for those benefits is referred to as a "make-whole agreement.

If the specific limitation of section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) applies to a plan, then section 432(e)(9)(D)(viii) requires that the suspension of benefits first be applied to the maximum extent permissible to benefits attributable to a participant’s service with an employer that withdrew from the plan and failed to pay (or is delinquent with respect to paying) the full amount of its withdrawal liability under section 4201(b)(1) of ERISA or an agreement with the plan. Such an employer is referred to in this preamble as a "subclause I employer." Second, under section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III), except as provided in section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(II), a suspension of benefits must be applied to all other benefits. Third, under section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III), a suspension of benefits must be applied to all other benefits. Third, under section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III), a suspension of benefits must be applied to all other benefits.

On June 19, 2015, the Treasury Department and the IRS published temporary regulations (TD 9723) under section 432(e)(9) in the Federal Register (80 FR 35207) providing general guidance regarding section 432(e)(9) as well as outlining the requirements for a plan sponsor of a plan that is in critical and declining status to apply for approval of a suspension of benefits and for the Treasury Department to begin processing such an application. A notice of proposed rulemaking cross-resembling the temporary regulations (REG–102648–15) and providing additional guidance was published in the same issue of the Federal Register (80 FR 35262). Neither the temporary nor the proposed regulations include language regarding the limitation under section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii). On October 23, 2015, the Treasury Department published a notice in the Federal Register (80 FR 64508) regarding an application for a proposed suspension of benefits, which represented that the plan is of the type to which section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) applies. The notice requested public comments on all aspects of the application, including with respect to the interpretation of section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) that is reflected in the application. The Treasury Department and the IRS have considered the comments received in response to that notice in developing these proposed regulations.

Explanation of Provisions

These proposed regulations would amend the Income Tax Regulations (26 CFR part 1) to provide guidance regarding section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii). The Treasury Department consulted with PBGC and the Labor Department in developing these proposed regulations. These proposed regulations would add a new paragraph (d)(8) to proposed § 1.432(e)(9)-1 and do not otherwise affect the provisions of the proposed regulations published in the Federal Register (80 FR 35262) on June 19, 2015.

Section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) sets forth a rule that limits how a suspension may be applied under a plan that includes benefits that are directly attributable to a participant’s service with any employer that, as defined in section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III), has withdrawn, paid the full amount of its withdrawal liability, and, pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, assumed liability for providing benefits to participants and beneficiaries of the plan under a separate, single-employer plan sponsored by the employer, in an amount equal to any amount of benefits for such participants and beneficiaries reduced as a result of the financial status of the multiemployer plan. In determining how a suspension should be allocated consistent with the statutory framework, the Treasury Department and the IRS analyzed the statute and applied principles of statutory construction.

Subclause (I) of section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) provides that the suspension of benefits should first be applied “to the maximum extent permissible.” Accordingly, the Treasury Department and the IRS conclude that reductions with respect to benefits attributable to service with a subclause I employer must be applied first to the maximum extent permissible before reductions are permitted to be applied to any other benefits. Consequently, these proposed regulations require that a suspension of benefits under a plan that is subject to section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) be applied to the maximum extent permissible to benefits attributable to service with a subclause I employer. Only if such a suspension is not reasonably estimated to achieve the level that is necessary to enable the plan to avoid insolvency may a suspension then be applied to other benefits that are permitted to be suspended and that are attributable to a participant’s service with other employers. In contrast, subclause (II) does not include the phrase “to the maximum extent permissible,” and therefore the Treasury Department and the IRS have concluded that the best interpretation of section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) is that a suspension is applied to the maximum extent permissible to benefits described in subclause (II) before any suspension is applied to benefits described in subclause (III).2 This interpretation is also consistent with the language in subclause (II) providing for application of a suspension “except as provided in subclause (III).” Contemplating a coordinated application of those subclauses, which are to be applied “second” and “third,” respectively.3 Because of the order of application of subclauses (II) and (III) and the coordinated application described in the preceding sentence, the Treasury Department and the IRS conclude that the best interpretation of section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) is that the application of a suspension to benefits described in subclause (II) must be greater than or equal to the application of the suspension to benefits described in subclause (III).

Under these proposed regulations, a suspension would not be permitted to reduce benefits directly attributable to service with a subclause III employer, unless other benefits are first reduced and are reduced to at least the same extent (thus protecting a subclause III employer from the possibility that the suspension would be expressly designed to take advantage of the employer’s agreement to make participants and beneficiaries whole for the reductions). Under these proposed regulations, a suspension would not violate this restriction if no participant’s benefits that are directly attributable to service with a subclause III employer are reduced more than that individual’s benefits would have been reduced if, holding constant the benefit formula, work history, and all other relevant factors used to determine the individual’s benefits, those benefits were attributable to the participant’s service with any other employer.

These proposed regulations would also provide that the benefits described in section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III) are any benefits for a participant under a plan that are directly attributable to service with a subclause III employer, without regard to whether the employer has assumed liability for providing benefits to the participant that were reduced as a result of the financial status of the plan. For example, if a participant commenced receiving retirement benefits under a plan, which are directly attributable to service with such an employer, before the date the employer entered into a make-whole agreement, then the participant’s benefits would be described in section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III) even if those benefits were not covered by the make-whole agreement. This interpretation is based on the statutory language in section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III), which defines the benefits to which a subclause applies as those benefits that are directly attributable to service with an employer that has met the conditions set forth in section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)(III)(aa) and (bb). In other words, the statutory provision refers to benefits directly attributable to service with an employer described in subclause III, and not only to benefits covered by the make-whole agreement.

The Treasury Department and the IRS are also considering an alternative to the ordering rule set forth in these proposed regulations. Under the alternative, as under the proposed rule, the rule would require that a suspension of benefits under a plan that is subject to

2 See Loughrin v. United States, 134 S. Ct. 2384, 2390 (2014) (“We have often noted that when Congress includes particular language in one section of a statute but omits it in another—let alone in the very next provision—this Court ‘presumes’ that Congress intended a difference in meaning.” (quoting Russell v. United States, 464 U.S. 16, 23 (1983)). To read subclause (II) to require that benefits be suspended “to the maximum extent permissible” without that language would either render that language superfluous in subclause (I), see Marx v. General Revenue Corp., 133 S. Ct. 1166, 1178 (2013) (“[T]he canon against surplusage is a basic interpretive canon that ‘a statute should be rewritten the statute.’”).

3 See Corley v. United States, 556 U.S. 303, 314 (2009) (rejecting constructions “at odds with the basic interpretive canon that ‘[a] statute should be construed [to give effect] to all its provisions, so that no part will be inoperative or superfluous, void or insignificant’” (quoting Hibbs v. Winn, 542 U.S. 88, 101 (2004))).
section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) be applied to the maximum extent permissible to benefits attributable to service with a subclause I employer before any suspension is applied to benefits attributable to service with other employers. However, in contrast to the approach described in these proposed regulations, the alternative would require that any such suspension of benefits be applied to provide for a lesser reduction in benefits that are directly attributable to service with a subclause III employer than to benefits that are attributable to any other service. The alternative approach could be satisfied if, for example, benefits that are directly attributable to service with a subclause III employer are reduced less, on a percentage basis, than benefits would have been reduced if, holding constant the benefit formula, work history, and all other relevant factors used to determine benefits, those benefits were attributable to service with any other employer.

The Treasury Department and the IRS recognize that the language of section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii) has similarities to other statutory provisions that establish priority categories requiring claims to be fully satisfied under each earlier category before any claims are permitted to be satisfied under any subsequent category. For example, section 4044 of ERISA provides for the allocation of pension plan assets in the event of a distress termination and for categories of payments to be made “in the following order”: “First,” “Second,” “Third,” “Fourth,” “Fifth” and “Sixth.”

If such an approach were applied under section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii), then the maximum permitted suspension would be required to be imposed with respect to benefits described in each subclause before any suspension could apply to benefits described in a successive subclause. Under that approach, any suspension of benefits would first have to be applied to the maximum extent permissible to benefits attributable to a participant’s service with a subclause I employer. Only if such a suspension were not reasonably estimated to achieve the level that is necessary to enable the plan to avoid insolvency would the suspension then be applied to other benefits that are permitted to be suspended and that are attributable to a participating employer.

4 The regulations interpreting this provision provide: “If the plan has sufficient assets to pay for all benefits in a priority category, the remaining assets shall then be allocated to the next lower priority category. This process shall be repeated until all benefits in priority categories 1 through 6 have been provided or until all available plan assets have been allocated.” See 29 CFR 4044.10(d).

6 That is, the phrase “to the maximum extent permissible” appears in subclause (i) but not in subclause (ii).
would have been if, holding constant the benefit formula, work history, and all other relevant factors used to determine benefits, those benefits were attributable to service with any other employer.

Proposed Amendments to the Regulations

Accordingly, 26 CFR part 1 is proposed to be amended as follows:

PART 1—INCOME TAXES

Paragraph 1. The authority citation for part 1 continues to read in part as follows:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805 * * *

Paragraph 2. Section 1.432(e)(9)–1 is added to read as follows:

§ 1.432(e)(9)–1 Benefit suspensions for multiemployer plans in critical and declining status.

(a) through (c) [Reserved]

(d) Limitations on suspension. (1) through (7) [Reserved]

(8) Additional rules for plans described in section 432(e)(9)(D)(vii)—

(i) In general. In the case of a plan that includes the benefits described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C) of this section, any suspension of benefits under this section shall—

(A) First, be applied to the maximum extent permissible to benefits attributable to a participant’s service for an employer that withdrew from the plan and failed to pay (or is delinquent with respect to paying) the full amount of its withdrawal liability under section 4201(b)(1) of ERISA or an agreement with the plan;

(B) Second, except as provided by paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C) of this section, be applied to all other benefits that may be suspended under this section; and

(C) Third, be applied to benefits under a plan that are directly attributable to a participant’s service with any employer that has, prior to December 16, 2014—

(1) Withdrawn from the plan in a complete withdrawal under section 4203 of ERISA and paid the full amount of the employer’s withdrawal liability under section 4201(b)(1) of ERISA or an agreement with the plan, and

(2) Pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, assumed liability for providing benefits to participants and beneficiaries of the plan under a separate, single-employer plan sponsored by the employer, in an amount equal to any amount of benefits for such participants and beneficiaries reduced as a result of the financial status of the plan.

(ii) Application of suspensions to benefits that are directly attributable to a participant’s service with certain employers—(A) Greater reduction in certain benefits not permitted. A suspension of benefits under this section must not be applied to provide for a greater reduction in benefits described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C) of this section than the reduction that is applied to benefits described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(B) of this section. This requirement is satisfied if no participant’s benefits that are directly attributable to service with an employer described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C) of this section are reduced more than that participant’s benefits would have been reduced if, holding the benefit formula, work history, and all relevant factors used to compute benefits constant, those benefits were attributable to service with an employer that is not described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C) of this section.

(B) Application of limitation to benefits of participants with respect to which the employer has not assumed liability. Benefits under a plan that are directly attributable to a participant’s service with an employer described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C) of this section include all such benefits without regard to whether the employer has assumed liability for providing benefits to the participant that were reduced as a result of the financial status of the plan as described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C)(2) of this section. Thus, all benefits under a plan that are directly attributable to a participant’s service with an employer described in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C) of this section are subject to the limitation in paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(A) of this section, even if the employer has not, pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement that satisfies the requirements of paragraph (d)(6)(ii)(C)(2) of this section, assumed liability for providing those benefits to participants and beneficiaries of the plan.

Deputy Commissioner for Services and Enforcement.
