

has had three customer inquiries about SUGs in the past ten years. The manufacturer stated that at a customer's request it would install an SUG. One other manufacturer noted that it offers a prototypical side-impact guard as optional equipment where specifications are consistent with a side-impact guard and it is determined the guard will not result in an unsafe condition.

Multiple manufacturers also reviewed the IIHS crash test of the guard to which petitioners refer. Manufacturers expressed concerns over various aspects of testing. Manufacturer responses indicated that the trailer was not loaded in a typical manner, in that the load on the trailer was concentrated in the back instead of being evenly distributed across the entire floor (as it would be in a real-world operation). For comparison, FMVSS 223 testing for rear underride requires the test structure/trailer to be fixed so that it does not move. One manufacturer conducted a separate crash test of the guard on what it described as a properly loaded trailer, and noted the trailer was displaced approximately three inches (3") compared to over one foot (12") in the IIHS test scenario with the same make/model crash vehicle and impact speed. The manufacturer described that in the IIHS test, energy was dissipated when the trailer flexed and slid (reducing the amount absorbed by the guard). The manufacturer had reservations about performance of the guard, given that the weighting and loading criteria in the IIHS test was not the same as that used for IIHS rear-impact tests, and also expressed concern about exposure to real-world conditions, including with regard to damage to the trailer and attendant safety risks. One manufacturer also noted that the IIHS test involved only a perpendicular impact at the center of the SUG. For comparison, FMVSS 223/224 requires testing along multiple locations of the rear guard. Crash data also shows a significant number of real-world events involve collisions at acute and obtuse angles, and no such tests are known to have been conducted with this guard.

The petitioners claim that since 2010, this guard has been installed on a small number of semi-trailers that logged over one million miles of use delivering loads without negative road clearance issues, structural deficiencies or issues with loading or unloading at docks. A manufacturer response indicated that this statement is based on one trailer operating a dedicated route. This is typical mileage for such an operation, as most trucks average 100,000 miles per year. A dedicated route means the trailer sees the same loading and unloading facilities and travels the same terrain. Furthermore, this manufacturer response stated that this unit is part of a multi-trailer fleet, and that the fleet has not added additional of these guards to the rest of its trailers.

More broadly, certain manufacturers noted that SUGs may be compatible with some trailer and fleet operations, although there was the suggestion that a "one size fits all" approach is not possible in the U.S. commercial vehicle market, where vehicles are designed and purchased for specific operations or for versatility necessitated by the fleet's operation. Multiple manufacturers are working on SUG designs, and several manufacturers have filed patents for their designs, although trailer manufacturers pointed out challenges. One manufacturer noted it had not, to date, identified a feasible design to prevent underride while not compromising the structural or operational capabilities of the trailer. Another manufacturer developing a prototype observed that testing is scheduled, but cited potential material shortages and shipping delays. Furthermore, it appears there is a hesitancy on the part of at least some manufacturers in the industry to develop SUGs without research from NHTSA on their effectiveness and cost.

NHTSA is authorized to issue an order requiring notification and remedy of a defect if the agency's investigation shows a defect in the design, construction, or performance of a motor vehicle that presents an unreasonable risk to safety. 49 U.S.C. 30102(a)(9), 30118. Factors the agency may consider when deciding whether to grant or deny a defect petition "include, among others, allocation of agency resources, agency priorities and the likelihood of success in litigation which might arise from the order." 49 CFR 552.8. The above discussion illustrates that the complex issues that the petitioners present would benefit from additional information and data. NHTSA does not prescribe a specific remedy even where a safety defect is identified, but the agency may set performance standards for equipment—and recognizing a need for further research and evaluation of SUGs, Congress included in section 23011 of the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law (BIL) (November 15, 2021) several provisions that relate to side underride issues.

Among these is a requirement that the Secretary of Transportation "complete additional research on side underride guards to better understand the overall effectiveness of side underride guards" and, "if warranted, develop performance standards for side underride guards." The Secretary is also required to publish findings of an assessment of the "feasibility, benefits, and costs of, and any impacts on intermodal equipment, freight mobility (including port operations), and freight capacity associated with, installing side underride guards on newly manufactured trailers and semitrailers with a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or more," and after taking public comment, submit to Congress a report that includes, among other things, "a determination as to whether the Secretary intends to develop performance requirements for side underride guards, including any analysis that led to that determination." In addition, the Secretary must establish an Advisory Committee on Underride Protection "to provide advice and recommendations to the Secretary on safety regulations to reduce underride crashes and fatalities relating to underride crashes."

Based on the available information and agency experience, ODI believes the issues raised by the petitioners are best addressed through the congressionally-directed evaluation of SUGs under section 23011 of the BIL. As the issues presented by the petitioners are being addressed pursuant to such direction, NHTSA has decided not to open a defect investigation, and the petition is denied. The denial of this petition does not foreclose the agency from taking further action if warranted or making a future finding that a safety-related defect exists based upon additional information the agency may receive.

Authority: 49 U.S.C. 30162(d); delegations of authority at CFR 1.95 and 501.8.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Title:
Primary Dealer Meeting Agenda.

OMB Control Number: 1505-0261.

Type of Review: Extension without change of a currently approved collection.

Description: The Primary Dealer Meeting Agenda a quarterly survey sent to all primary dealers, of which there are currently 25 financial institutions. Primary dealers are trading counterparties of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in its implementation of monetary policy. Primary dealers are also expected to have a substantial presence as a market maker for Treasury securities and bid on a pro-rata basis in all Treasury auctions. The Treasury's mission to manage the U.S government's finances and resources effectively includes financing the government's borrowing needs at the lowest cost over time. Treasury meets this objective by issuing debt in a regular and predictable pattern, providing transparency in its decision-making process, and seeking continuous improvements in the Treasury auction process. The risks to regular and predictable debt issuance result from unexpected changes in our borrowing requirements, changes in the demand for Treasury securities, and anything that inhibits timely sales of securities. To reduce these risks, Treasury closely monitors economic conditions, market activity, and, if necessary, responds with appropriate changes in debt issuance based on analysis and consultation with market participants, including the primary dealers through the quarterly survey and subsequent meetings.
