AGENCY: Bureau of Land Management, Interior.

ACTION: Notice of application.

SUMMARY: On November 2, 2017, the State of Alaska (State) finalized an application with the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) for a recordable disclaimer of interest (RDI) from the United States for the submerged lands underlying portions of the Arolik River System, including the East Fork of the Arolik River, the Arolik River and Arolik Lake in western Alaska. An RDI, if issued, would disclaim the United States' interest in the lands underlying the portions of the waterbodies in the RDI application. This notice informs the public of the pending RDI application and supporting evidence submitted by the State and requests additional information related to the waterbodies in the application.

DATES: All comments should be received on or before February 6, 2026. The BLM will issue a decision on the application on or after April 7, 2026.

ADDRESSES: The State's RDI application and its attachments may be viewed at: <https://www.blm.gov/programs/lands-and-realty/regional-information/alaska/RDI/kuskokwim>, under the section titled, "Arolik River." Public comments may be mailed, emailed, or hand delivered. Individuals in the United States who are deaf, deafblind, hard of hearing, or have a speech disability may dial 711 (TTY, TDD, or TeleBraille) to access telecommunications relay services. Individuals outside the United States should use the relay services offered within their country to make international calls to the point-of-contact in the United States.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On November 2, 2017, the State filed a final application (AA-93319) for an RDI pursuant to section 315 of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 as amended (43 U.S.C. 1745), and the regulations in 43 CFR part 1860, subpart 1864, which authorize the BLM to issue an RDI. An RDI is a legal document through which the BLM would disclaim the United States' interest in or ownership of specified lands. This notice of application informs the public of the pending application and the State's supporting evidence and provides the public an opportunity to comment or provide additional information to the BLM.

The State's RDI application asserts that the waterbodies were navigable in fact on the date of Alaska Statehood, January 3, 1959. As such, the application contends that ownership of the submerged lands underlying the East Fork of the Arolik River, the Arolik River and Arolik Lake automatically passed from the United States to the State on the date of Statehood under the Equal Footing Doctrine, the Submerged Lands Act of 1953, the Submerged Lands Act of 1988, the Alaska Right of Way Act of 1898, Alaska Statehood Act, and other title navigability laws.

The RDI application includes eligible submerged lands for the following land descriptions: (1) the East Fork Arolik River including Arolik Lake: All submerged lands between the ordinary high-water lines of the left and right banks of the East Fork Arolik River beginning at the outlet of Arolik Lake within sec. 24, T. 8 S. R. 70 W., Seward Meridian, Alaska (S.M.), downstream to the east boundary of sec. 10, T. 8 S., R. 71 W., S.M.; and all submerged lands below the ordinary high water line of Arolik Lake within secs. 23, 24, and 25, T. 8 S., R. 70 W., S.M., and secs. 19, 30, and 31, T. 8 S., R. 69 W., S.M.; (2) Arolik River: All submerged lands between the ordinary high water lines of the left and right banks of the Arolik River, within T. 7 S., R. 71 W., S.M. The BLM is seeking additional information related to the waterbodies in the State's RDI application. Examples of additional information are photographs or videos capturing boats being used on the waterbodies, historical or present-day use diaries, or specific verbal knowledge, whether passed down through the region, or present-day use, information on the type of boat or watercraft used, and information on the time of year boats are, or were, used. In addition to boat use, the BLM is seeking hydrological data and/or photographs that capture waterbody characteristics such as depth, width, obstructions or obstacles, or shallow stream sections.

In previous Federal Register notices regarding RDI applications, the BLM provided a 90-day public comment period. The BLM determined that 30 days is adequate and sufficient time under the circumstances to receive substantive and relevant public input as is permitted under 43 CFR 1864.2. Additionally, a 30-day public comment period provides the BLM with a minimum of 60 days to review comments received before making a decision on the application on or after 90 days from the date of publication in the Federal Register.

Copies of the State's RDI application and comments provided in response to this notice will be available for public review at the BLM Alaska State Office (see ADDRESSES earlier), during regular business hours, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Alaska Time, Monday through Friday, excepting Federal holidays.

Before including your address, phone number, email address, or other personally identifying information in your comment, you should be aware that your entire comment—including your personally identifying information—may be made publicly available at any time. While you can ask the BLM in your comment to withhold your personally identifying information from public review, we cannot guarantee that we will be able to do so. The State's RDI application asserts that the waterbodies were navigable in fact on the date of Alaska Statehood, January 3, 1959.
