Abstract of Information Available

The Upper Colorado River Storage Act of 1956 authorized construction of the Navajo Dam and the creation of Navajo Reservoir on the San Juan River in northwest New Mexico and Southwestern Colorado. As a part of this act, the National Park Service, acting for the Bureau of Reclamation, contracted the School of American Research and the Museum of New Mexico to carry out salvage archaeology in the areas that would be affected by the creation of the reservoir. Beginning in 1956, field work began in 1956 on the Navajo Reservoir Project (Project #48.01a) and continued through 1963.

A total of 11 cultural items have been requested for repatriation. The 11 unassociated funerary objects are three lots of coprolites (sites LA 3023, LA 4055, and LA 4411 in San Juan County, NM), seven lots of botanical remains (sites LA 3398, LA 4411, and LA 114367 in Rio Arriba County, NM, and LA 3432, LA 3491, LA 4055, LA 4065 from San Juan County, NM) and one lot of ceramics (site LA 52255 in San Juan County, NM) discovered along the reservoir in 1985. The cultural items were removed from the Navajo Reservoir area of Rio Arriba and San Juan counties, New Mexico, and are in the custody of the Museum of New Mexico, Museum of Indian Arts and Culture, Santa Fe, New Mexico, and Arizona State University, School of Human Evolution and Social Change, Tempe, Arizona. The unassociated funerary objects have been identified by a preponderance of the evidence as related to human remains, specific individuals, or families, or removed from a specific burial site or burial area of an individual or individuals with cultural affiliation to an Indian Tribe or Native Hawaiian organization.
