Based on the information available, no human remains have been identified. The 25,150 unassociated funerary objects are pottery, lithics, faunal bone, shell, charcoal, associated feature soils and one lot (1,167 kilograms) of burned rocks.

In 1994, archaeological investigations of the southwestern portions site 40WG17 in Washington County, Tennessee, were carried out by the Cherokee National Forest and Appalachian State University. Fieldwork consisted of controlled surface collection, systematic auger sampling, and systemic plow zone excavation. Although human remains were observed on the surface, they were not disturbed or collected. Pottery, lithic artifacts, animal bone and shell, and burned rocks were collected within each 10 x 10-meter collection sample square and from corresponding auger tests and excavation units. In total, one lot (1,167.720 kg) of burned rocks; 7,492 lithic artifacts; 17,405 prehistoric ceramic artifacts; 80 animal bone and shell fragments; and 170 historic artifacts were collected. In addition, one lot of soil samples and one lot of charcoal samples were collected.

Determinations

On the basis of the record¹ developed in the subject investigations, the United States International Trade Commission ("Commission") determines, pursuant to the Tariff Act of 1930 ("the Act"), that there is a reasonable indication that an industry in the United States is materially injured by reason of imports of choline salts from China, provided for in subheading 2923.10.00 of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States, that are alleged to be sold in the United States at less than fair value ("LTFV") and subsidized by the government of China.^{2,3}
