(k) Certified programs must include an attestation on consumer application forms.

(l) Certified programs must conduct annual audits and submit to Commission-directed audits.

(m) Certified programs must document compliance with NDBEDP requirements, provide such documentation to the Commission upon request, and retain such records for at least five years.

(n) Certified programs must submit reimbursement claims as instructed by the TRS Fund Administrator, and supplemental information and documentation as requested. In addition, the entity selected to conduct national outreach will submit claims for reimbursement on a quarterly basis.

(o) Certified programs must submit reports every six months as instructed by the NDBEDP Administrator. In addition, the entity selected to conduct national outreach will submit an annual report.

(p) Informal and formal complaints may be filed against NEDBEDP certified programs, and the Commission may conduct such inquiries and hold such proceedings as it may deem necessary.

(q) Certified programs must include the NDBEDP whistleblower protections in appropriate publications. In March 2026, the Commission adopted the Suspension and Debarment Report and Order, FCC 26–18, published at 91 FR 18134, April 9, 2026, which applies the government-wide non-procurement suspension and debarment framework to the NDBEDP. These rules amend 47 CFR 64.6207 and 64.6215 to require NDBEDP certified programs to submit the disclosures required under 2 CFR 180.335 when applying for certification or recertification, to update such disclosures annually, and to provide updated disclosures upon any substantive change affecting their qualifications. Certified programs must also obtain and maintain disclosures from lower-tier participants—such as contractors, subcontractors, consultants, and suppliers—that play a material role in NDBEDP transactions. These new requirements introduce additional reporting and recordkeeping obligations that are accounted for in the burden estimates in this Supporting Statement.
