C. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement on Comments on the Proposed Rule Change Received From Members, Participants, or Others

No written comments were either solicited or received.

III. Date of Effectiveness of the Proposed Rule Change and Timing for Commission Action

Because the foregoing proposed rule change does not: (i) significantly affect the protection of investors or the public interest; (ii) impose any significant burden on competition; and (iii) become operative for 30 days after the date on which it was filed, or such shorter time as the Commission may designate, it has become effective pursuant to Section 19(b)(3)(A)(iii) of the Act [27] and subparagraph (f)(6) of Rule 19b–4 thereunder.[28]

A proposed rule change filed under Rule 19b–4(f)(6) [29] normally does not become operative prior to 30 days after the date of the filing. However, pursuant to Rule 19b4(f)(6)(iii),[30] the Commission may designate a shorter time if such action is consistent with the protection of investors and the public interest. The Exchange has asked the Commission to waive the 30-day operative delay so that the proposed rule change may become operative on December 6, 2026, the date on which the Exchange will commence 23/5 Trading and on which the provisions set forth in the Corporate Actions Proposal concerning corporate actions and issuer-related events subject to a mandatory Regulatory Halt would otherwise become operative. The Exchange states that waiver of the operative delay would ensure that, on the date those provisions become operative, they are reflected in their proper location in the current Rule 4120 structure, with accurate cross-references, thereby avoiding any period during which the operative Rule 4120 would not accurately reflect the corporate action regulatory halt framework that applies to securities for which Nasdaq is the Primary Listing Market. The Exchange also states that the substance of the proposed rule text was set forth in the Corporate Actions Proposal, and the remaining changes are conforming or clarifying in nature. For these reasons, and because the proposed rule change does not raise any new or novel regulatory issues, the Commission finds that waiver of the 30-day operative delay is consistent with the protection of investors and the public interest. Therefore, the Commission hereby waives the 30-day operative delay and designates the proposed rule change to be operative on December 6, 2026.[31]

At any time within 60 days of the filing of such proposed rule change, the Commission summarily may temporarily suspend such rule change if it appears to the Commission that such action is necessary or appropriate in the public interest, for the protection of investors, or otherwise in furtherance of the purposes of the Act. If the Commission takes such action, the Commission shall institute proceedings under Section 19(b)(2)(B) [32] of the Act to determine whether the proposed rule change should be approved or disapproved.

IV. Solicitation of Comments

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[Release No. 34–106971]

Order Granting Temporary Exemptive Relief, Pursuant to Section 36(a)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and Rule 203(d) of Regulation SHO, From Compliance With the Locate Requirement in Rule 203(b)(1) of Regulation SHO Outside of Regular Trading Hours

November 23, 2026.

I. Introduction

On November 20, 2026, PTG submitted a request for exemptive relief pursuant to section 36 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (''Exchange Act'') [1] from the locate requirement under Rule 203(b)(1) of Regulation SHO [2] for U.S. equity securities that are traded outside of regular market hours.[3] In submitting the request, PTG cites (i) a need for further development of the market infrastructure needed to obtain locates (defined below) outside of regular trading hours in the same manner as during regular trading hours, and (ii) operational challenges in obtaining locates for trading outside of regular market hours that may stifle liquidity and limit participation in trading sessions outside of regular market hours. Accordingly, PTG requests that the Commission provide temporary exemptive relief from the locate requirement to facilitate trading outside of regular market hours.

For the reasons discussed below, the Commission has determined it is appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors to grant temporary exemptive relief until November 23, 2027, pursuant to its authority under section 36(a)(1) of the Exchange Act and Rule 203(d) of Regulation SHO, from compliance with the locate requirement in Rule 203(b)(1) of Regulation SHO for broker-dealers effecting short sales during trading occurring outside of 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Eastern Time (''ET'').

II. Background

The Securities and Exchange Commission (''Commission'' or ''SEC'') adopted Rule 203(b)(1) of Regulation SHO under the Exchange Act to reduce persistent fails-to-deliver in order to address potentially abusive ''naked'' short selling.[4] Rule 203(b)(1) of Regulation SHO generally requires a broker-dealer, prior to effecting short sales in an equity security, to ''locate'' the securities available for borrowing.[5] Subject to certain exceptions,[6] the rule prohibits a broker-dealer from accepting a short sale order in any equity security from another person, or effecting a short sale for the broker-dealer's own account, unless the broker-dealer (1) has borrowed the security, or entered into a bona-fide arrangement to borrow the security, or (2) has reasonable grounds to believe that the security can be borrowed so that it can be delivered on the date delivery is due.[7] This requirement to either borrow or enter into a bona fide agreement to borrow, or have reasonable grounds to believe that the security can be borrowed in time for delivery, is known as the ''locate'' requirement and must be met and documented by the broker-dealer effecting a short sale prior to effecting the short sale, regardless of whether the seller's short position may be closed out by purchasing securities the same day.[8] Broker-dealers engaged in certain bona-fide market making activities at the time of the short sale may be eligible for the bona-fide market making exception to the locate requirement.[9]

The Commission discussed the expansion of extended-hours trading (i.e., trading that occurs outside of the regular trading hours of 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. ET) even before Regulation SHO's locate requirement was adopted,[10] and interest in extended-hours trading has increased in recent years.[11] Under these circumstances, PTG requests a temporary exemption from the locate requirement in Rule 203(b)(1) for extended-hours trading.[12] PTG asserts that the requested exemption ''will allow all market participants to actively support the ongoing initiatives to expand market trading hours for U.S. equities, thus fostering deep liquidity and broad participation.'' [13]

III. PTG Exemption Request

In its request for relief, PTG states that the market infrastructure necessary to obtain locates ''outside of regular market hours'' in the same manner as ''during regular trading hours'' is ''not fully developed,'' which creates operational challenges with the potential to ''stifle liquidity and participation'' outside of regular trading hours.[14] PTG highlights operational concerns that render the locate requirement difficult during extended-hours trading. First, PTG notes that many lending desks, which provide locates, may not be open 24 hours a day.[15] Second, PTG states that locates obtained during regular hours may expire before extended-hours trading commence.[16] PTG also states that clearing broker infrastructure may not be ready to accommodate trading outside of regular trading hours.[17]

PTG states that during extended-hours trading, liquidity is typically thinner, trading interest is more episodic in nature, and price volatility may be higher. PTG also states that even when trading sessions outside of regular market hours become supported by registered exchanges, it is anticipated that a significant percentage of overall trading activity will continue to occur off-exchange.[18] PTG suggests that, as a result, market makers may not be able to use the bona fide market making [4] Short selling involves a sale of a security that the seller does not own and that is consummated by the delivery of a security borrowed by or on behalf of the seller. In a ''naked'' short sale, a seller does not borrow or arrange to borrow securities in time to make delivery to the buyer within the standard settlement cycle, which is currently one business day after the trade (''T+1''). As a result, the seller fails to deliver securities to the buyer when delivery is due. This is referred to as a ''failure to deliver'' or ''fail.'' Sellers can intentionally fail to deliver securities as part of a scheme to manipulate the price of a security, or possibly to avoid borrowing costs associated with short sales. This is typically referred to as ''manipulative'' or ''abusive'' naked short selling. See ''Naked'' Short Selling Antifraud Rule, Exchange Act Release No. 58774 (Oct. 14, 2008), 73 FR 61666, 61667 (Oct. 17, 2008). See also Short Sales, Exchange Act Release No. 50103 (July 28, 2004), 69 FR 48008, 48009 and 48028 (Aug. 6, 2004) (''Regulation SHO Adopting Release'').

Thus, the impact of any manipulative short selling after hours would be less than the effect of such activity during regular market hours because after-hours prices are not widely viewed as indicative of normal market prices.'').

[11] In recent years, the Commission has approved exchange rules permitting operation of exchanges during extended or overnight trading hours. See, e.g., Exchange Act Release No. 101777 (Nov. 27, 2024), 89 FR 97092 (Dec. 6, 2024); Exchange Act Release No. 104086 (Sept. 26, 2025), 90 FR 46978 (Sept. 30, 2025); Exchange Act Release No. 102400 (Feb. 11, 2025), 90 FR 9794 (Feb. 18, 2025); Exchange Act Release No. 105532 (May 21, 2026), 91 FR 31509 (May 27, 2026); Exchange Act Release No. 105199 (Apr. 10, 2026), 91 FR 20222 (Apr. 15, 2026); and Exchange Act Release No. 105587 (May 29, 2026), 91 FR 33238 (June 3, 2026). Notably, however, while the Commission has approved rule changes of several national securities exchanges that would extend their hours of operation, those exchanges have not yet started trading during such ''exchange extended hours.'' This is because the exchanges' rules provide that the exchanges will not commence operation of extended hours trading until the effective national market system (''NMS'') plans that govern the collection, consolidation, processing, and dissemination of equity market data for NMS stocks and oversee the exclusive securities information processors (''SIPs'') (i) have established a mechanism to collect, consolidate, process and disseminate quotation and transaction information at all times during ''exchange extended hours'' that is equivalent to the mechanism established for times outside of those ''exchange extended hours''; and (ii) have notified the exchanges that they are prepared to collect, consolidate, process and disseminate quotation and transaction information during the ''exchange extended hours.'' The Commission approved NMS plan amendments to extend the hours of operation of the exclusive SIPs from 9 p.m. ET Sunday to 8 p.m. ET Friday, with a one-hour pause in operations at 8 p.m. ET, Monday, through Thursday. See Exchange Act Release No. 105779 (June 26, 2026), 91 FR 40082 (July 1, 2026) (approval order for CTA Plan and CQ Plan; implementation is scheduled to occur on December 6, 2026) and Exchange Act Release No. 105780 (June 26, 2026), 91 FR 40058 (July 1, 2026) (approval order for UTP Plan; implementation is scheduled to occur on December 6, 2026).

exception to provide liquidity outside of regular trading hours as they ''may not be able to continuously quote in an identical manner compared to regular trading hours.'' [19]

PTG also states that the Commission has, over time, strengthened the close-out requirements and that, ''[o]verall, the close-out requirements have been effective in reducing settlement failures, as close-outs typically result in an economic loss being incurred, which provides a strong incentive to avoid settlement fails.'' [20] Further, PTG states that the penalty provisions that apply when a broker-dealer has not timely closed-out a fail to deliver are ''extremely punitive from a commercial perspective.'' [21]

PTG further asserts that it is possible that clearing brokers may continue to require locates or, alternatively, enforce short position limits even in the absence of a specific Commission locate requirement.[22] According to PTG, clearing brokers would otherwise continue to closely monitor the short sale activities of their customers and may bar certain customers from short selling altogether if they observe a pattern of fails.[23]

IV. Discussion and Exemptive Relief

Section 36(a)(1) of the Exchange Act authorizes the Commission to exempt, conditionally or unconditionally, any person, security, or transaction, or any class or classes of persons, securities, or transactions, from any provision or provisions of the Exchange Act, or of any rule or regulation thereunder, to the extent that such exemption is necessary or appropriate in the public interest, and is consistent with the protection of investors.[24] Rule 203(d) of Regulation SHO provides that, upon written application or upon its own motion, the Commission may grant an exemption from the provisions of Rule 203, either unconditionally or on specified terms and conditions, to any transaction or class of transactions, or to any security or class of securities, or to any person or class of persons.[25] For the reasons discussed below, the Commission finds that it is necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors to grant a temporary exemption from compliance with the locate requirement in Rule 203(b)(1), for broker-dealers effecting short sales during trading occurring outside of 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. ET.

The locate requirement serves an important investor protection function by helping to reduce persistent fails-to-deliver and potentially abusive ''naked'' short selling. The operational challenges associated with satisfying the locate requirement during extended-hours trading, however, present distinct considerations that warrant temporary relief. In particular, the limited availability of securities lending desks, the potential expiration of locates obtained during regular trading hours, and the developing infrastructure to support extended-hours trading may impede broker-dealers' ability to obtain locates. These operational limitations could restrict short selling activity during periods when liquidity and market participation are already limited.

The Commission has previously recognized that short selling provides important benefits to the securities markets, including market liquidity and pricing efficiency. Other market participants have also stated, in discussions with Commission staff, that a temporary exemption from the locate requirement would provide flexibility to facilitate greater participation and increased liquidity in extended-hours trading. The Commission believes that addressing the operational impediments to short selling during extended-hours trading could facilitate additional trading interest, enhance liquidity, and contribute to more efficient price discovery. These potential benefits are particularly relevant during extended-hours trading, when thinner liquidity and episodic trading interest may make it more difficult for investors to execute transactions at competitive prices. By facilitating short-selling activity during these periods, the temporary exemption could help support the development of a more liquid and efficient extended-trading hours market.

The exemption's limited scope and temporary duration, together with the continued applicability of other regulatory safeguards, provide appropriate flexibility to facilitate liquidity during extended-hours trading. In particular, Rule 204 of Regulation SHO, including its close-out requirements and penalty provision, would continue to apply to failures to deliver arising from short sales effected during extended hours. In addition, Rule 10b–21 and other applicable antifraud provisions would continue to prohibit deceptive or manipulative conduct. They would continue to provide important safeguards against fails-to-deliver and potentially abusive ''naked'' short selling during the temporary exemption period.

The basis for this temporary exemption is the distinct operational challenges associated with satisfying that requirement while the infrastructure supporting extended-hours trading continues to develop. Accordingly, the Commission believes that limiting the exemption to extended-hours trading appropriately targets the operational challenges that could otherwise impede short selling activity and the associated liquidity and pricing efficiency benefits, while preserving the locate requirement during regular trading hours.

The temporary nature of the exemption also reflects the Commission's expectation that the operational challenges associated with satisfying the locate requirement during extended-hours trading will diminish in relatively short order as extended-hours trading commences and market participation increases. In particular, as trading activity expands outside of regular market hours, the Commission anticipates that securities lending desks and other market participants providing securities lending services will respond to increased demand by extending their availability and enhancing the systems and processes necessary to support borrowing activity during those hours. Similarly, broker-dealers are expected to develop and adapt their systems for obtaining and documenting locates to accommodate extended-hours trading. Accordingly, the Commission believes that the operational limitations underlying the need for this exemption are temporary in nature.

For these reasons, the Commission finds that the temporary exemption is appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors. The exemption is narrowly tailored to address operational challenges specific to extended-hours trading while facilitating short selling activity that could contribute to greater liquidity, more competitive pricing, and improved price discovery during those periods. The Commission believes that the potential benefits of facilitating short selling during extended-hours trading, together with the limited scope and duration of the exemption and the continued application of other regulatory safeguards, support granting this temporary relief.

V. Conclusion

Accordingly, it is hereby ordered, pursuant to section 36(a)(1) of the Exchange Act, and Rule 203(d) of Regulation SHO, that the temporary exemptive relief set forth above is

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[Release No. 34–106960; File No. SR–MEMX–2026–37]

Self-Regulatory Organizations; MEMX LLC; Notice of Filing and Immediate Effectiveness of a Proposed Rule Change To Amend the Short Term Option Series Program With Respect to Qualifying Securities

November 23, 2026.

Pursuant to Section 19(b)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the ''Act''),[1] and Rule 19b–4 thereunder,[2] notice is hereby given that on November 16, 2026, MEMX LLC (''MEMX'' or the ''Exchange'') filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the ''Commission'') the proposed rule change as described in Items I and II below, which Items have been prepared by the Exchange. The Commission is publishing this notice to solicit comments on the proposed rule change from interested persons.

I. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Terms of Substance of the Proposed Rule Change

The Exchange is filing with the Commission a proposed rule change to amend the Short Term Option Series Program in Rule 19.5, Interpretation and Policy .05(h) with respect to Qualifying Securities. The text of the proposed rule change is provided in Exhibit 5 and is available on the Exchange's website at https://info.memxtrading.com/regulation/rules-and-filings/.

II. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Purpose of, and Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change

In its filing with the Commission, the Exchange included statements concerning the purpose of and basis for the proposed rule change and discussed any comments it received on the proposed rule change. The text of these statements may be examined at the places specified in Item IV below. The Exchange has prepared summaries, set forth in sections A, B, and C below, of the most significant aspects of such statements.

A. Self-Regulatory Organization's Statement of the Purpose of, and Statutory Basis for, the Proposed Rule Change

1. Purpose

The Exchange proposes to amend the Short Term Option Series Program in Rule 19.5, Interpretation and Policy .05(h) with respect to Qualifying Securities. Specifically, the Exchange proposes to amend the Qualifying Securities to: (1) permit the listing of up to two Tuesday and Thursday Expirations for options on certain exchange-traded funds (''Fund Shares'') (as defined in Rule 19.3(i)) that meet the current criteria, in addition to the existing Monday and Wednesday Expirations; and (2) permit the listing of up to two Monday and Wednesday Expirations for options on additional Fund Shares that meet new criteria. The Exchange also proposes to designate the Fund Shares that meet the current criteria in Rule 19.5, Interpretation and Policy .05(h) as ''Tier 1 Qualifying Securities'' and to designate the Fund Shares that meet the proposed new set of criteria, and that would only be permitted to list up to two Monday and Wednesday Expirations, as ''Tier 2 Qualifying Securities.'' This is a competitive filing based on a similar proposal submitted by Nasdaq ISE, LLC (''ISE''),[3] which was recently approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission (the ''Commission'').

Background

Currently, as set forth in Rule 19.5, Interpretation and Policy .05(h), after an option class has been approved for listing and trading on the Exchange as a Short Term Option Series,[4] the Exchange may open for trading on any Thursday or Friday that is a business day (''Short Term Option Opening Date'') series of options on that class that expire at the close of business on each of the next five Fridays that are business days and are not Fridays in which standard expiration options series, Monthly Options Series, or Quarterly Options Series expire (''Friday Short Term Option Expiration Dates''). The Exchange may have no more than a total of five Short Term Option Expiration Dates (''Short Term Option Weekly Expirations''). Further, if the Exchange is not open for business on the respective Thursday or Friday, the Short Term Option Opening Date for Short Term Option Weekly Expirations will be the first business day immediately prior to that respective Thursday or Friday. Similarly, if the Exchange is not open for business on a Friday, the Short Term Option Expiration Date for Short Term Option Weekly Expirations will be the first business day immediately prior to that Friday.

Additionally, the Exchange may open for trading series of options on the symbols provided in Table 1 of Rule 19.5, Interpretation and Policy .05(h) that expire at the close of business on each of the next two Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, respectively, that are business days beyond the current week and are not business days in which standard expiration options series, Monthly Options Series, or Quarterly Options Series expire (''Short Term Option Daily Expirations'').[5] For those symbols listed in Table 1, the Exchange may have no more than a total of two Short Term Option Daily Expirations beyond the current week for each of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday Expirations, as applicable, at one time.

Further, the Exchange may open for trading series of options on the symbols provided in Table 2 of Rule 19.5, Interpretation and Policy .05(h) that expire at the close of business on each of the next two Mondays and Wednesdays, respectively, that are business days beyond the current week and are not business days in which standard expiration options series,

[4] The term ''Short Term Option Series'' means a series in an option class that is approved for listing and trading on the Exchange in which the series is opened for trading on any Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday that is a business day and that expires on the Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, or Friday of the next business week, or, in the case of a series that is listed on a Friday and expires on a Monday, is listed one business week and one business day prior to that expiration. If a Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday is not a business day, the series may be opened (or shall expire) on the first business day immediately prior to that Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday, respectively. For a series listed pursuant to this section for Monday expiration, if a Monday is not a business day, the series shall expire on the first business day immediately following that Monday. See Exchange Rule 16.1.

[5] As set forth in Table 1 of Rule 19.5, Interpretation and Policy .05(h), the Exchange currently permits expirations in SPY, IWM, QQQ on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. Also, the Exchange permits expirations in GLD, SLV and TLT on Mondays and Wednesdays. Finally, the Exchange permits expirations in USO and UNG on Wednesdays.
